

ABSTRACT

A method for scenting toilet paper that does not require adding special apparatuses to the toilet paper dispensing means. The method includes the steps of providing a tubular toilet paper roll made of an absorbent material, applying a liquid scent to the toilet paper roll, attaching toilet paper onto the roll to form a toilet paper roll, and wrapping the toilet paper roll substantially air tight with a material impervious to the scent, thereby scenting the toilet paper roll.